1 INTRODUCTION

Bob Dylan goes electric and the tempo in his career and life accelerates: two outstanding albums in one year, two major tours, one film, the end of the folk music era at Newport. On top of that he is during the whole of this year constantly writing on his book Tarantula. He meets Sara Lowndes and they marry in November.

2 THE YEAR AT A GLANCE

3 CALENDAR

January	Sing Out! publishes a prose piece that is taken from a book called Walk Down Crooked Highway later to be Tarantula .
January	Robert Shelton interviews Dylan for Cavalier magazine.
13-15 January	Recording of Bringing It All Back Home .
17 February	Les Crane TV Show.
March	The Maura Davies interview for Cavalier , concentrating on his tie and it's importance for his song-writing.

---

March	Dylan again tours with Joan Baez.
14 March	Daniel Kramer photographs Dylan and Sara Lowndes at Albert Grossman's cabin in Woodstock. One shot is later included in Kramer's book about Dylan.
22 March	Release of Bringing It All Back Home .
Late March	Paul Jay Robbins from the L.A. Free Press interviews Dylan. One of the few interviews from this period that are serious through out.
April	Release of single Subterranean Homesick Blues/She Belongs To Me . In US this single spent 8 weeks at the charts, peaking at a modest #39. It fared a little better in England where it spent 9 weeks in Top 50, peaking at #9.
26 April	Dylan arrives to London for his English tour.
8 May	Shooting of the promotional film for Subterranean Homesick Blues at the side of Savoy Hotel in London. "Actors" in the background are Allen Ginsberg and Bob Neuwirth. The cards are painted by Alan Price and Joan Baez

8 DON'T LOOK BACK

Don't Look Back was filmed in England April-May 1965 during Dylan's tour there. It was produced by D.A. Pennebaker and premiered at the Presido Theater in San Francisco on May 17, 1967. On September 6 of that year it opened in New York City at the 34th Street Theater.

It is now available as commercial video, Virgin Music Video, runs about 96 minutes and features Joan Baez, Alan Price, Donovan, Albert Grossman and Bob Neuwirth. An extended version with an alternative Subterranean Homesick Blues video, shot in a park in London and five new audio tracks was released on DVD January 2000. Assistant producer was Howard Alk who was to be co-editor with Dylan on his next film "Eat The Document" in 1966.

Don't Look Back documents Dylan's tour of England back-stage, on stage and off stage. It is filmed in black and white.

<sup>5</sup> No known recording with Bob Dylan. Presumably written for Joan Baez. Covered by Joan Baez on a number of albums, both studio and live. The version on "Any Day Now" has an unpublished extra verse, which may be written by Bob Dylan.

<sup>9</sup> Performed live late in 1965, e.g. in Chicago, November 26. Recorded "in the basement", 1967.

<sup>10</sup> Circulating version is incomplete. It is generally thought to be an early version of Temporary Like Achilles. Considered for release on Biograph.
